DINING ROOM LIGHTING IDEAS

That Command Attention

Lighting can make or break a design scheme, so it's worth aiming for a standout fixture, especially in a dining room. The perfect union of style and function, lighting never fails to set the mood. Today, top designers are outfitting dining rooms with everything from vintage brass chandeliers to sleek pendants with visual appeal.

CRYSTAL CHANDELIER

A Louis XVI crystal chandelier and Hamilton Conte sconces dress up a London dining room, complete with a custom table, chairs in Romo and Pasaya fabrics, and a Blue Savoy marble mantel.

X BRASS CHANDELIER

For a duplex in New York City's SoHo neighborhood, designer Alyssa Kapito hung a Stilnovo-style Architectural Cantilever pendant from Orange Furniture over a dining table from Fort Standard.

JAPANESE TEMPLE LIGHT

The cozy, light-filled dining room in textiles maven Pat McGann's home features a Japanese temple light along with an antique American table and vintage metal chairs.

VENETIAN GLASS CHANDELIER

Kelly Wearstler punctuates a dark and moody dining room on Mercer Island, Washington, with a purple Venetian glass chandelier and ceiling sheathed in a gold De Gournay wall covering.

VINTAGE CHANDELIER

Decorator Elizabeth Roberts finished the dining room of a Brooklyn brownstone with a vintage chandelier from John Salibello, a custom Lobel Modern goatskin dining table surrounded by Edward Wormley chairs for Dunbar, and walls covered in de Gournay's Sans Soucis.

BUBBLE CHANDELIER

In the Chelsea home of Etsy COO Linda Findley Kozlowski, a handblown glass bubble chandelier from The Light Factory adds drama to the dining room. The table and bench are by Studio Moe; the vintage candle holders are by Retro Spec List; and the buffet cabinet is by Sapienza Design.

SCULPTURAL FIXTURE

For the San Francisco bachelor pad of a young pilot, designer Emilie Munroe chose a sculptural light fixture by Charles de Lisle. The wallpaper, a series series of nine landscape photographs, repeated and rendered in black and white, is by Elizabeth Dow.

DUAL CHANDELIERS

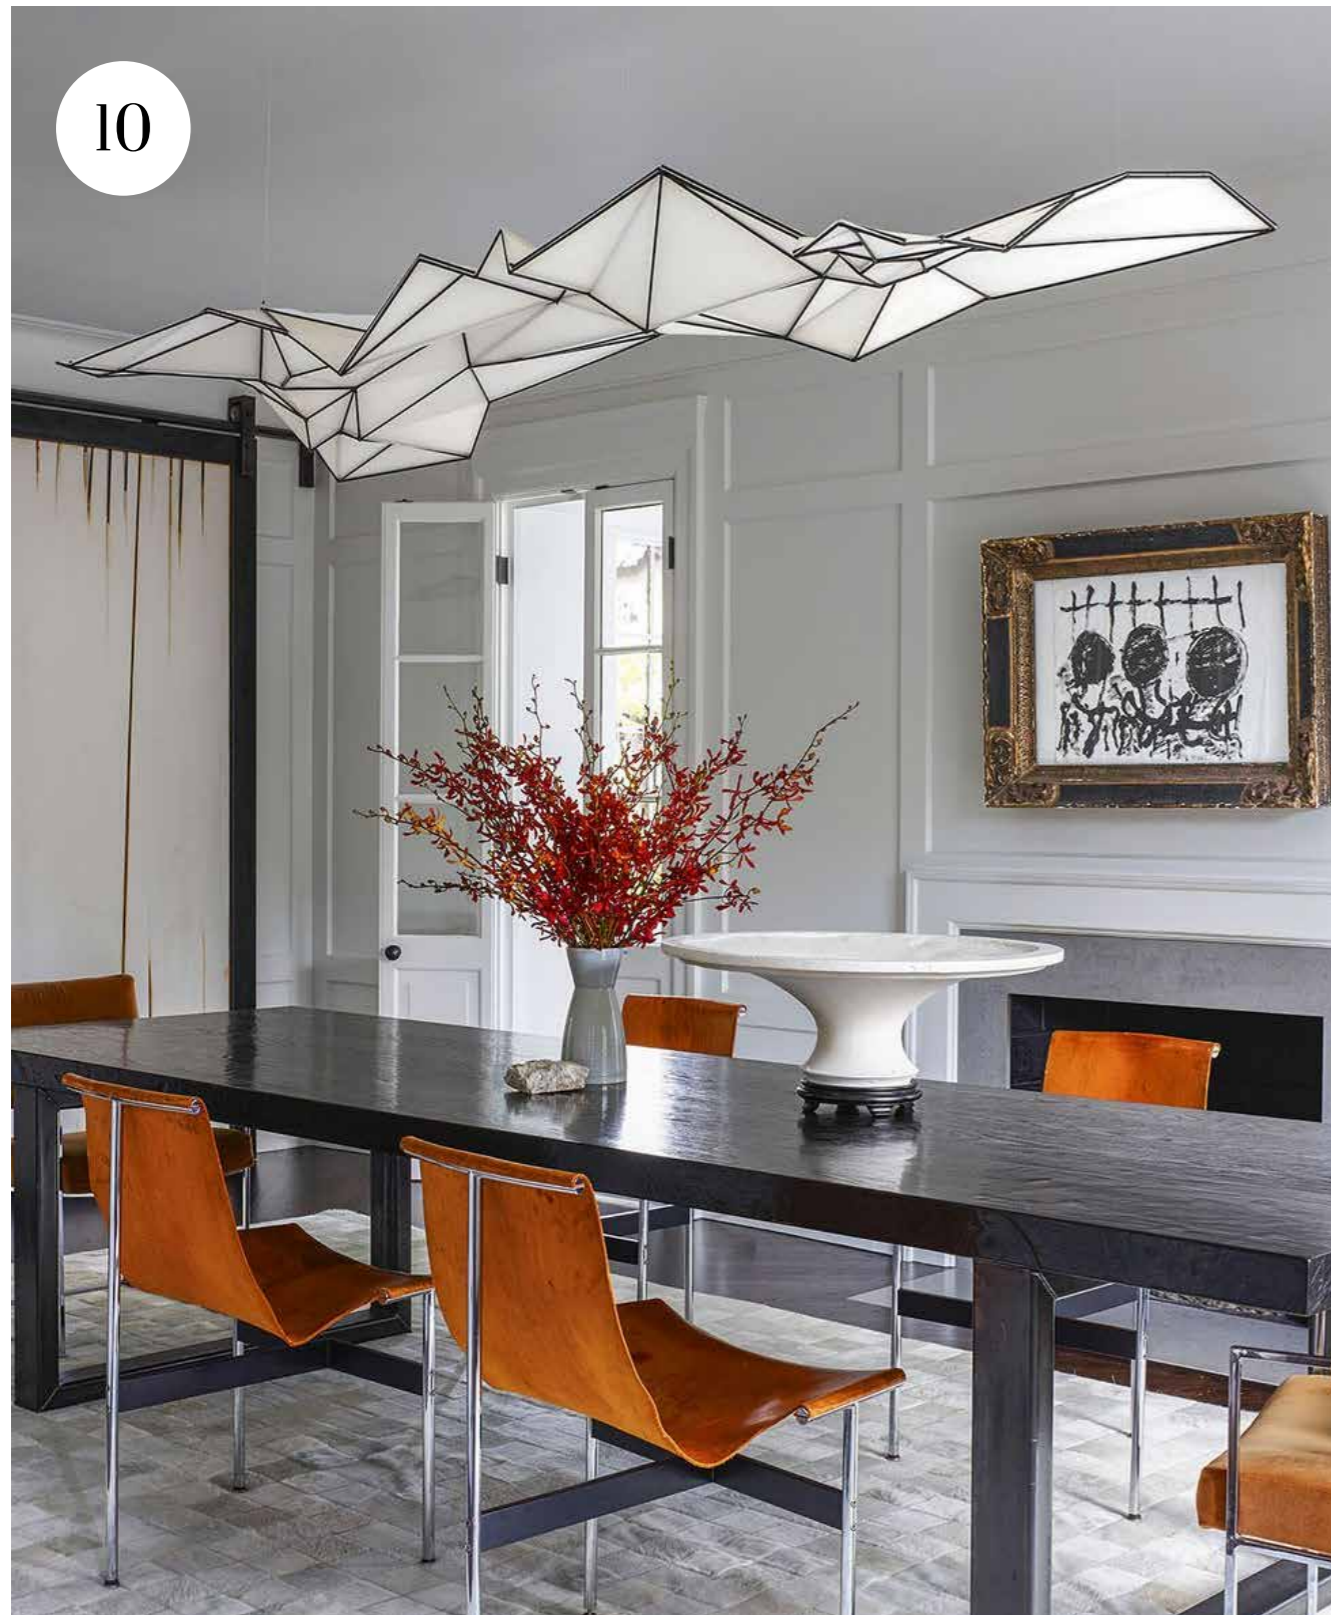

In Madrid, this dining room's red parchment walls, carpet and the Tony Duquette fabric used for the tablecloths are all by Gastón y Daniela. The vintage chandeliers, from Retiro Mobiliario, create defined seating areas in the large dining room.

SIMPLE PENDANT

In a Brooklyn townhouse, the mid-century modern light is a simple accent next to the colorful Moroccan rug and patterned Brian Paquette wallpaper.

10

ORIGAMI LIGHT DIFFUSER

For a dining room in Washington, D.C., Darryl Carter designed an origami-inspired glass-and-steel light diffuser with artist Margaret Boozer. This light serves as both a functional and sculptural piece.

11

MODERN MOBILE

In Paris' gritty 10th arrondissement, this chic dining room features a pair of 1930s French chairs that are upholstered in an African wax print fabric, a set of Louis XVI dining chairs in a Sanderson fabric and a ceiling fixture by Michael Anastassiades. Tip: Use modern lighting as an anchor for a space that is dominated by antiques.

GLAM FIXTURE

Fashion editor Jackie Astier had the dining room walls of her family's Manhattan apartment painted with 10 coats of lacquer. The table is made from a pair of 1970s brass bases she found on eBay, the '40s French chairs are upholstered in a Lelievre velvet and the rug is by the Rug Company. A jeweled chandelier is one of many luxe elements in this dining room.

16

SIMPLE SHADES

In this dining room in Florence, two simple lamp shades serve as the main light source. The sleek burgundy pendant lights here are a custom design.

Creative Ways to Make Your Window Sill

Inspiring ideas to add style to this small space.

FOCAL POINT

CACTI ASSORTMENT

Sometimes all that's needed is an assortment of plants to add interest to a space. Here, Emilie Munroe relied on cacti to dress up a bay window. "This second-story bay window in San Francisco was the perfect opportunity to bring the outside in with a sculptural assortment of hearty cactus in varying sizes."

SMALL POTTED PLANTS

Any room can benefit from a variety of small potted plants. Plus, they can easily be moved around to other rooms whenever you're ready for a change.

COLORFUL FRUIT

Looking for a no-stress option to dress up your window? Line your window sill with a few pieces of your favorite fruit, as seen in this vibrant Greek kitchen.

WORK SURFACE

If you have limited square footage but long for a functional office space, try extending your window sill to become a work surface, as seen in this design from Marie Flanigan. "This gives the user a beautiful connection to the outdoors and integrates the architecture of the home into the details of the decor," Flanigan says.

FRUIT BOWL

Planning to eat more healthy this year? Stay on track by keeping a bowl of fresh fruit in full view—right in the middle of your window sill.

MIXED FLORALS

Take in the beauty of nature by displaying small floral arrangements, which can serve as the perfect addition to your decor year-round.

BOTTLE BRUSH TREES

Add some pizzazz to your window ledge with an assortment of bottle brush Christmas trees. They're a small addition that can have a big impact on your holiday decor setup.

MINI EASEL

A mini easel is a fun way to play up your creative side and put your imagination to the test.

TREE BRANCHES

Tree branches exude rustic appeal that work for just about any room. Place them in a stylish vase for even more visual interest.

WINDOW SEAT

The perfect union of comfort and function, designer Marie Flanigan chose to extend a window sill to make room for seating in this girl's room.

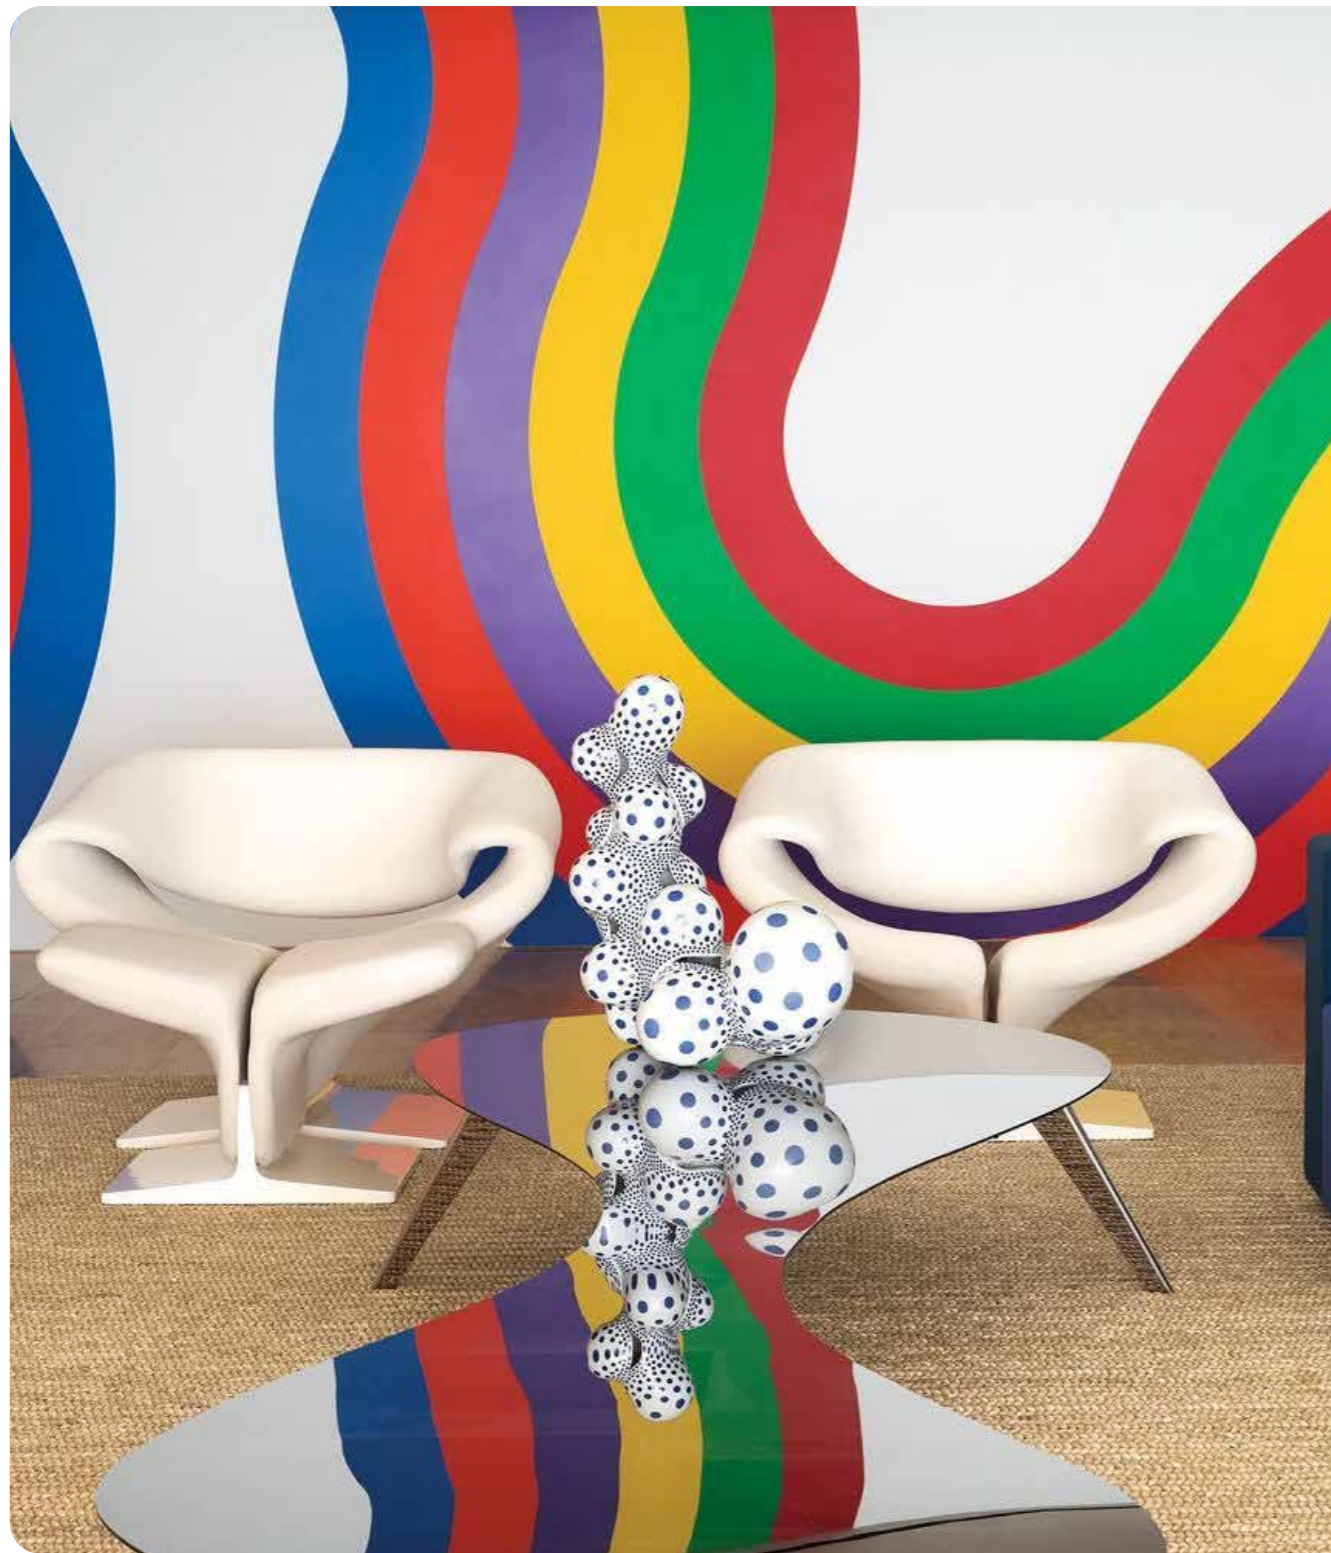

Ways to Make a White Room Feel Absolutely...

Of the many interior design misconceptions, one that's especially deceiving is the idea that white equates to boring. While there are many ways to incorrectly incorporate

Boring

Boring palette, who?

a white palette into your home, there are hundreds of ideas for making this neutral shade shine. Just because your rooms aren't a riot of color doesn't mean they have to be bland or uninspired, and with great guidance—and greater inspiration—you'll discover that white is the most versatile backdrop.

MODERN MIAMI WHITE

For an apartment in Miami's legendary Surf Club, Delphine Krakoff creates a vivacious welcome in the all-white entry hallway with a wavy, rainbow mural by Sol LeWitt that snakes through the 50-foot-long, windowless space.

The blue-and-white vintage plates were mostly found on the couple's travels, and the throw is Mexican.

In a classic Central Park apartment, the stark white walls set the stage for dramatic furniture and decor, like the table by Egg Collective and the light fixture is by Lindsey Adelman.

WHITE BATHROOM

A bathroom in John Robshaw's Connecticut home balances white walls with global decor. The ornate sink cabinet is from Syria, the shower curtain and rug are by Robshaw.
